Free tickets for educators to Bay-Atlantic Symphony's education concerts

Teachers and music educators can reserve free tickets for the 2009 education concerts, sponsored by the Bay-Atlantic Symphony.

The 2009 Gus Cilento, M.D. Education Concerts, will take place on Friday, May 1, 2009, at 9:45 and 11:15 a.m., at the Frank Guaracini, Jr. Performing Arts Center, Cumberland County College, Sherman Avenue and College Drive, Vineland; and on Tuesday, May 5, 2009, at 10:30 a.m. and 12 p.m., at the Richard Stockton College Performing Arts Center, Jimmie Leeds Road, Galloway Township.

These 45-minute concerts, entitled "How Music Talks: Let's Play!" will consist of pieces that engage the whimsical, playful, and fanciful.

To illustrate this, the Bay-Atlantic Symphony and Music Director Jed Gaylin will present selections from Sergei Prokofiev's A Summer's Day and Classical Symphony, as well as Ludwig van Beethoven's Piano Concerto No. 3 performed by young French piano virtuoso Olivier Cangelosi.

Tickets are free because of the generous donations from the Dodge Foundation, Frank and Lydia Bergen Foundation, and Richard Stockton College. A limited number of bus vouchers are available on a first come, first served basis.

For more information, call the Bay-Atlantic Symphony at 856-451-1169.

NORTHFIELD RABBI JOINS JCDS CHILDREN

Rabbi David Weis, spiritual leader of Congregation Beth Israel in Northfield, joined with some of the children of Northfield's Jewish Community Day School and helped the students light their Chanukah candles on the third day of the holiday. As good neighbors the students of the day school and the leadership of Beth Israel Congregation have learned to enjoy and enhance the community spirit of their shared community. For information about the program at the community's day school, committed to quality secular and Jewish education which is pluralistic in its goals, please call Headmaster, Nachum Chasan at 677-9922.
